A good woman and wife is not made in the sack because she is made far before that time ever comes. Women who are developed in the bed are pros and they a job title for what they do but that's not who you are you are destined to be the wife of a King. Good bed activity does not equal a happy marriage there is more to a good marriage than sheet shaking and baby making. Far as much as we may want to take pleasure in our spouses all day everyday, we can't just spend all of our days in bed because life is beckoning us to get up and move. Too many women believe in what I call bed magic. Bed magic is when a spouse believes that if they do their thing in bed then all of their short-comings, faults and mistakes in the relationship should be overlooked and not mentioned leaving the greater load of developing and maintaining the marriage and home on the man. Bed magic is the mistake that a lot of people make, thinking that you can satisfy your spouse with your body only but they never take the time to think about how important it is to share their thoughts & plans through excellent communication, share the financial responsibilities, save money, invest money, pay the bills on time, raising children in the Faith of Jesus, house keeping, cooking, washing and folding clothes. There have been many of relationships and marriages come to an abrupt and tragic end that had superb sexual relations but either one or the other or both of them were not ready mentally or spiritually. Most people only see marriage as a physical thing and totally disregard the other components of being sacrificial, considerate, compassionate, communitive, open and honest, forsaking others for the spouse, put the spouse first (even before children) and being accountable.

Kings can get just about any woman they want but as you have seen from the bible verse above that the King was interested in a woman who had been prepared for his bed, his home and his life. There is nothing worse than selling out and committing to someone who you thought was prepared but were not and they soon become a weight on your life because you became a personal trainer, a parent, a daily motivational, a banker, a cook and Lord help the King if she is over attached to her mother who has many of the same issues. Kings are looking for women who have taken time and have gone through the necessary process of development so that they can be more than a sack mate. Kings need to know that they can trust they wife with their lives because it is when a King is in bed is when he is most vulnerable to an attempt on his life.

Let us move on and learn a few things from our girl Esther. Esther was not only a beautiful woman with a very nice shapely built body but according to most bible historians. But she had the spiritual fragrance that helped to enhance those outer qualities. She had something on the inside that was beautiful, peaceful and attractive. Beauty and figure are two nice attributes to have when it comes to attracting a regular man. But I'm talking about attracting a man who is a king takes more than the physical, you need what Esther had, and that is an awesome spiritual fragrance and a spiritual guide. As a matter of fact Esther's spiritual fragrance was a result of her submission to her mentor (her cousin Mordecai). She had something going-on in the spirit realm which made her ever more beautiful on the outside. The first thing we will notice about Esther's spirit is that she had a submissive spirit to Mordecai her elder cousin, spiritual father, mentor and spiritual adviser. When Mordecai spoke and gave Esther words of direction and or instruction she listened and obeyed. She allowed Mordecai who is the true highlight of the entire book of Esther to be the lamp for her feet and he walked her right into the Kings Heart and favor. Mordecai is the true hero of book because he was the protection for Esther and the rest of the exiles. Esther chapter ten is prime place to read to prove Mordecai's case as the hero of the book. Chapter ten is the shortest of all of the chapters of the book but to me it is the biggest because the three small verses contain the purpose of the book which was to point to the greatness of Mordecai, who is the unseen force behind Esther's glorification. He is a prophetic picture of the Holy Spirit of God, who seeks to lead us into wealthy places and speaks peace to us all. Read this.

¹ And the king Ahasuerus laid a tribute upon the land, and upon the isles of the sea. ² And all the acts of his power and of his might, and the declaration of the greatness of Mordecai, whereunto the king advanced^a him, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia? ³ For Mordecai the Jew was next unto king Ahasuerus, and great among the Jews, and accepted of the multitude of his brethren, seeking the wealth of his people, and speaking peace to all his seed.

Esther 10:1-3

Many people who submitted themselves under the care and guidance of a mentor tend to get upset because their mentors seem to be mean, stern, impatient or just plain old hard. But when a mentor seems to give off these vibes most of the time it is because they have taking their role beyond mentor to parent. That is what Mordecai was to Esther, Esther was his niece but in his eyes she was his daughter. So when Mordecai spoke a word he expected Esther to listen and obey because he was preparing her for her time and if she didn't listen and obey then she would lose God and God would give the privilege of delivering the people to someone else. Before Esther could spend the night with the King she had to go through a time of purification and sweetening in the anointing of Myrrh. For one whole year Esther was being cleansed and sweetened for one night with the King, this night was a very important night to Esther and her people (the Jews). She was not going to have a night at the door of the King without the anointing on her and in her. She had to go through a year of processing before he could even make an appointment or arrangements to see the King.

I know that so many of you desperately want to marriage but are willing to go through the process of following the guideless of Mordecai and the process of being anointed for a years time.
